Thoughts from Richard Steed:

Happy 1 Year Anniversary!

This month marks the anniversary of our acquisition of American Mobile Shredding. We would like to recognize the valued customers who have become a part of our company. We appreciate the opportunity we have had this past year to earn your business. We want to especially recognize the tremendous group of employees that became a part of the Pacific family one year ago during our expansion. It has been a wonderful year as we worked together to blend two deep rooted companies that have a long and historic legacy in California's Central Valley.

This month our list of employee anniversaries will be much longer! Thank you again to the new (1 Year!) members of the Pacific Family—and to our longtime Richard veterans!

Public Transportation Personal Safety Tips

Using public transportation can save you money and get you to your destination efficiently. To make your ride as safe as possible, keep these personal safety tips in mind.

1. Plan out your route ahead of time. Consult online schedules to map out the best path to your destination and to find out how much money you'll need. This will keep you from becoming disoriented or distracted while traveling.

2. Wait in a lighted or busy area. Try to avoid dark or unoccupied waiting spaces. Stay close to other riders as you wait, and board the bus or train as soon as it arrives.

3. Be aware of your surroundings. Traveling on public transportation is not a good time to take a nap or to tune out your environment. Watch for altercations or disturbances that could put you at risk. Refrain from wearing headphones or earbuds, or becoming too enthralled in the latest bestselling novel—these could distract you and make you a potential target.

4. Do not have your wallet or money in sight. Keep your personal belongings neatly inside your bag, briefcase, backpack, or purse. Hook your arm through your bag to keep it snugly against your body. But if someone does try to rip your bag out of your hands, don't put up a fight. Remember that your safety is more important than your property.

5. On a train or bus, ride as close as possible to the operator or driver. Criminals tend to see them as authority figures and are less likely to ply their trade in that area of the cabin. If someone bothers you, notify the operator immediately.

Green Living: Old Clothes, New Life!

With the warm weather here, many of us are going through the process of swapping out our wardrobes. We may find ourselves sorting through clothes that have gone out of style, no longer fit, or that we're just plain bored with. But before you gather up your closet's undesireables and head for the nearest trash bin, consider this: the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) estimates that textiles comprise roughly five percent of landfill mass. However, 99% of those textiles are reusable, and should be recycled.

Fortunately, options for recycling old clothing abound.

Instead of throwing out that shirt, revive a frayed collar by carefully cutting it off, flipping it over, and reattaching it for a look that's good as new. Cut those holey winter blue jeans into summer shorts, or patch them with pieces of cloth from another pair that's too far gone to mend. Disguise stains with iron-on patches. Have fun and get creative! Find the joy in hemming an old skirt, or replacing buttons on a shirt. Performing these relaxing and rewarding activities can cheaply and easily liven up an old wardrobe and help save our landfills.

"No one realizes how beautiful it is to travel until he comes home and rests his head on his old familiar pillow." — Lin Yutang

Streamlining Your Office Move with Document Shredding and Storage

Summer is prime time for office moves. But moving your business can be difficult, especially when you need to move your people, products, and equipment without breaking the bank.

You'll likely want to maximize every square foot of your new space. Fortunately, professional document shredding and records storage service providers are perfectly suited to help with streamlining your office move.

Chances are you have file cabinets and boxes stuffed with old folders. An office move will go much smoother when you can get rid of unneeded documents in advance. You can try to shred everything with an office shredder, but depending on the volume of files you need to destroy, the job could take days or even weeks.

A shredding company can simplify the process for you. They'll drop off secure collection containers at your office. Then you simply drop old files in the containers without worrying about removing staples and paper clips. When your containers are filled, a screened specialist will destroy the contents and provide you with a Certificate of Destruction.

Not every document, however, can be shredded. Based on your document retention requirements, you may need to hold on to a portion of your records. If that's the case, consider storing them offsite at a document storage facility where they'll be protected by professional records management personnel, and can be delivered to you at a moment's notice. You'll use less space in your new office and gain more time to grow your business.

5 Ways to Keep Your Dog Safe This Summer

During the summer, we like to spend more time outdoors. Our dogs do too, so be sure to keep your furry friend happy and safe during the warmer months.

1. You may think that a dog's fur protects him from the sun, but skin cancer is actually the most common form of cancer in dogs. While fur does provide some protection, you should apply sunscreen if you are going to be out in the sun for more than an hour. You don't need to apply the sunscreen directly on fur. Instead, concentrate on areas that have little hair—the belly area, ears, and snouts. The best sunscreen to use is one that is safe for human babies.

2. Avoid the hottest part of the day. If possible, go out for a walk and some exercise early in the morning, or late in the afternoon, or evening. Both you and your dog will be more comfortable.

3. Talk to your vet about extra protection from hookworms and heartworms. These parasites are more prevalent during the summer months. A simple prescription medication can keep them at bay.

4. Gardening chemicals can be dangerous for your pet. Keep plant food and pesticides locked up. After applying these chemicals, be sure that your lawn or garden is completely dry before allowing your dog back in the area. If you use a granular product, water well afterward and let dry completely before giving your pet access to that space.

5. Never leave your dog in your car during the summer months, even if it is just for a few moments, even if the windows are down. The temperature inside a car can rise very quickly, and you don't know if you will be distracted or delayed. Cracking the windows, even rolling them down fully, is not enough to keep the interior of your vehicle cool. Heatstroke can come on quickly for a dog, so there is never a safe amount of time you can leave any pet in your car.
